2. Introduction

The Dramatics Society of MNIT, popularly known as Team DIL – Drama Is Life, organized the Plot-O-Prop Competition as an engaging and creativity-driven theatrical event. The competition aimed to challenge participants' spontaneity, imagination, and teamwork by pushing them to build a complete skit around a randomly assigned prop within a limited preparation time.

Objective:

To encourage creative thinking, improvisation, collaboration, and theatrical storytelling by making participants adapt and perform around a given prop.

Target Audience:

MNIT students

3. Event Highlights

Description:

The Plot-O-Prop Competition featured six teams, each consisting of three members. Every team was provided with a random prop and a fixed preparation time, during which they had to conceptualize and rehearse an elaborate skit.

The teams were free to interpret the prop creatively — either by marketing it, weaving it into a storyline, or using it as a central theatrical element. This open-ended format resulted in a wide variety of performances, ranging from humorous and satirical acts to thought-provoking and innovative narratives.

The judges appreciated the originality, coordination, and adaptability displayed by the participants, making the competition both entertaining and intellectually stimulating.

Winners:

- First Prize: Kaushal Singh and Group
- Second Prize: Shiv Parashar and Group

The winning teams were awarded prizes in recognition of their creativity, performance quality, and effective use of the given prop.

4. Activities Conducted

- Opening Brief: Explanation of rules, judging criteria, and performance guidelines
- Prop Allocation: Random distribution of props to each team
- Preparation Time: Teams brainstormed, scripted, and rehearsed their skits
- Performance Round: Each team presented their skit on stage
- Prize Distribution: Felicitations of the winning teams
- Closing Remarks: Feedback and appreciation for all participants

5. Creative Essence

The competition showcased a perfect blend of improvisation, teamwork, and theatrical innovation. Participants transformed simple everyday objects into powerful storytelling tools, proving that creativity thrives best under constraints. The audience thoroughly enjoyed the unexpected twists and inventive interpretations presented on stage.

6. Audience Engagement

The event witnessed enthusiastic participation and active audience engagement. Laughter, applause, and appreciation throughout the performances reflected the event's success. The dynamic nature of the competition kept the audience hooked till the very end.

7. Sponsorship

The event was independently organized and funded by Team DIL, with no external sponsorship.
